YOU'RE ALRIGHT!

From: Dr. Eleonora Waterbury

Mr. Boyd, your psyche is in good shape. My only concern is your stress level. My research shows that Beethoven's music soothes and relaxes the nervous system. I recommend you invest in a bit of good old Ludwig Van. It will help with any violent urges you might be feeling.

Pretty boring, static, and uninteresting to look at. There's only a few acoustic guitar tracks that are pretty loud and a little grating to listen to, but maybe that's just me. It's really easy and the AI is really stupid. It's only a buck, so it's hard to really complain that much.. game wants to be twisted metal 4 the graphics are old and it is too hard to move around. pretty fun for the 10 minutes I played. It kind of reminds me of happy wheels. They could take this game and add different types of flight devices or other things to play around with and it would be a little more attractive to the player. With what the games offering right now I would not expect for this to be popular. Im only giving it a positive because it reminded me of happy wheels. I found this game while me and my friend were looking for a free game to play. In the beggining this game was very confusing and the grafics looked like a 10 year old made it; but all in all, it was a pretty cool game.. I can confirm this game works on the Oculus Rift with Touch controllers. Starting the game is a pain, I think you have to click on joystick and hit trigger at the same time. But once it starts, it plays fine.

Be warned, this game is more a workout than anything else. Even on normal difficulty, your arms will feel the burn as you push on through to the finish line. And yes, most of this race is uphill with almost no downhill.

Not so much fun, as an arcade challenge workout. I can recommend at the sale price of $2.49 but not more than that.

Rate 5.5/10. Great game.

to idle for cards.. Meh. Gunplay is okay, locomotion is alright, graphics aren't very good and the gameplay is just decent at best. If it was one of my first VR experiences it might have been fun.. but at this point there are just SO much better options out there. After playing a game like Robo Recall on Oculus, this game is just absolutely boring and bland. And Robo Recall was free..

For $30 I would say absolutely don't purchase it, that's asking way too much. I bought the game for $20 on sale and I'm asking for a refund. Maybe $10 if you have nothing better to play.. but this game is just bland and doesn't deserve the price tag.

Also.. I usually don't get VR sickness, but I felt very sick playing this game within 10 minutes.. wow...VR world is fabulous.... Game has GREAT potential. I want to love the game, I know its in alpha but it needs heavy fixing! They're so many bugs like when bandits rob you they some of them dont go away making it impossible to continue, another price setting sometimes when you scroll it does this redicilous randomly changing number or it allows you to go to a certain price. They're couple more but I wouldn't recommend this game if you don't wanna deal with bugs. Developer you read this please comment saying you're gonna continue this game please do! Give me some hope. I can only rate this game 6/10 right now.. I personally found this game rather enjoyable. A dark and sinister point-and-click romp through an occult swamp. It's a fairly short game which can easily be completed in under an hour. No dialogue, just creepy occult\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665\u2665 It's similar to the Cat Lady, which is much longer and has a lot more substance.

Just bought 4 copies. I am betting this things gonna suck! xD (ill update later)

I just hope its not buggy like that halloween patch.

DotE is game of the year IMO. This is a fun game to play and try to get a good high score. Other than a few knit-picky parts that bug me (power-up mode can end near a trap, some obstacles obstruct view of the tile behind them), I had my fair share of fun with this one. I downloaded it, completed the achievements within an hour, and that's it for me.

As worth as a chocolate bar.. I'm straight up mad at Bethesda here. I bought the game a week ago for a full $60USD, which I was on the fence about because I had already bought it once on PS4, then a normal PC copy here on Steam. But I decided to pull the trigger anyways, and here we are not even a full week later and they put the game on sale! Now it's going for $39, which really should've been the normal price. It's total crap how this happens just after I bought the game. I wouldn't be complaining if I had the game for a while, but only a week and the price goes down, absurd.. MSF Academy really does feel like the other Switch Force games. It's very fun and can make you use your brain, but there are a few things that I feel need to be added or changed.

-The levels are fun and can be done very easily, but that's almost a problem. I'm sure there are more levels on the way, but right now, everything was very simple. Maybe some more challenging levels could be added or the design of some of other ones can be changed around a bit, just for a bit more of a challenge.

-There needs to be some kind of a payoff. The other Switch Force games give a reward of some sort for completing the levels. Whether it be a costume or extra levels, there needs to be something. I don't know how anyone else feels about it, but I always feel like I've successfully completed a game when I get something out of it.

-Multiplayer! The multiplayer system is a good idea. I believe that WayForward should expand on that. But if there's a multiplayer, there needs to be a drawback on the par system. It will have to depend on how many people are present. If there are two people, they will have 45 seconds to complete the map, instead of 1 minute. If there are three people they will have 30 seconds and so on.

-Aaaand, for fun, maybe a concept art mode or gallery. Certain conditions have to be met to get this picture or certain conditions have to be met to get the concept art. You know, that kind of thing. It's not important, it just may add some more to the game. Give players something extra to do and really strive to complete every level without going over par.

All and all, this is a good game. Even though it's still in progress, I still had fun with it. I recommend this game to those who love the Switch Force series. For those who don't really know of the games, this could be a good way to introduce possible new players. It's not too difficult and other reviews could really add to this game. Very nice job!. This game may look kind of short at first, but it doesn't really get fun until you win and unlock Nightcore mode. I swear, this game is insane when you actually get the ball rolling. Definetely worth my time and money. Has at least 50 more hours for me to sink into. Getting gud at this game and learning all of the intricate timings of jumps and slides in various encounters is really fun.. Both are good, a bit Risky and Tricky to use, Iru is like Alternative version of Marc with powerful passive you can use her to choose wins or Stars Norma

Mira also good if you like stabbing people from behind,and spamming traps

Sweet and Cute Voice,Decent BGM. Devs Ruined this masterpiece

. What do you get when you mix the THPS soundtrack with Rocksmith? Awesomeness! And this DLC. Get it now!
